Terms of Use

The copyrights for most of the papers listed in this web site are held by the journals or conference proceedings or edited volumes, in which the papers have been published. Pre-prints or draft versions are provided in electronic form through this web site, in order to facilitate the dissemination of educational and research-related information in a non-commercial basis. The author(s) of these versions of the documents retain the copyright as well as all other rights therein, despite the fact that these documents are here available in electronic form.

If you copy the electronic documents that are provided through this page, you must use the copies in a way that adheres to terms and constraints invoked by the rights of the authors. Documents cannot be copied for commercial redistribution, republication or further dissemination without the explicit permission of the author(s).

Â